

Rafting On The Great Nenana River

If you are looking for an adventurous vacation, why not go to Alaska? There are many sights to see and activities to do while you are there. One of the biggest attractions is the Nenana River. In addition to fishing, looking at the beautiful landscapes, and hiking along the banks, whitewater rafting is one activity you should definitely try while on vacation. Over 50,000 people each visit the Nenana River.

Whitewater rafting is one activity that never gets old. Because you will be in a raft with up to six other people, teamwork becomes very important. The Nenana River was created after the ice caps melted. It is a windy river that has some very severe rapids in parts. If you are new to whitewater rafting, you may want to join a rafting excursion that includes a guide. Even though this can cost more than renting a raft for the day, it is much safer alternative to going out there alone on waters you are unfamiliar with.

When contacting rafting companies, make reservations a few months in advance so you will be able to get the dates you want. Rafting trips are very popular and can be booked with months at a time. By scheduling a rafting trip, you can be sure that all safety requirements will be followed. Helmets, life jackets, and protective shoes are often used to help keep you safe on and off the water.

Because of the river's size, hiring a guide is one way to help you stay on parts of the river that match your skill level. Depending on what you are comfortable with, there are levels suited for beginners, intermediate, and advanced river enthusiasts. When you are looking for a great day of adventure, try white water rafting in addition to the many other activities you can enjoy when on vacation in Alaska.

If you don't want to hire a guide, you will still have to rent a raft, safety equipment, and make sure you have protective clothing you don't mind getting wet. Depending on the length of your trip, you may also want to buy a few maps or a small GPS device to help you navigate your way on the river.

It is very important to find a rafting company that provides all the necessary safety equipment for you and your family. Rafting companies are obligated to provide life jackets and give you a quick lesson on how to use the oars, and position your body when you enter into an area that is full of tough rapids. Having a guide will help you find your way along the river.

When you visit Alaska then hire car, you will be able to enjoy many other activities besides rafting. These activities include hiking, swimming, fishing, and hunting. If you aren't into spending the day outdoors, there are many museums you can visit in addition to fine restaurants and night spots.

About the Author

John Bakers writes articles mostly for <http://www.alicante-spain.com> , a website with information about speed limits in Spain . You might see his work on driving in Spain on his site.

Source: <http://www.diyresource.com>