

London Vacation Plans

If you want to plan a vacation with lots to see and do, a trip to London may be what you are looking for. There are many museums, monuments, buildings, cathedrals, zoo, shopping, and a wax museum for you to see. This is a great vacation destination for those who have children or those who want to see the many wonders of this city and enjoy the night life. Before your vacation, you should decide on a few places to go so you will not waste time once you arrive.

No visit to London is complete without seeing sites like St. Paul's Cathedral. Still used today for events and ceremonies, you will enjoy the architecture, stonework, and history that this cathedral brings. It was rebuilt after a fire in 1666, so you will be able to appreciate the craftsmanship and beauty of a building this old.

Another place you should visit on your trip is The British Museum. This museum is home thousands of paintings, artifacts, jewelry, and other collectibles. The museum is free for everyone who wants to see the massive collection up close. Founded by Sir Hans Sloane in 1753, and personally filled with over 71,000 pieces from his private collection, you will be able to see ancient Greek and Roman artifacts and many other pieces that have been contributed to the museum since. You could spend the entire day wandering through this museum's halls to see some of the most exciting items in the world.

Other museums include the Tate Modern, the Natural History Museum, and Madam Tussaud's Wax Museum, which features recreations of some of London's bloodiest moments in history. This museum may not be for children.

After seeing a lot of wonderful architecture, artwork, and statues, you may want to see something a little more lively. The London Zoo has over 12,000 animals for you to see. The zoo is alive with activity and fun for the entire family. Since the zoo is so large, many people have to visit it twice in order to see all the exhibits.

Once you have visited the museums and the zoo, you should plan a trip to see Westminster Abbey and The Tower of London. These structures have historical significance and are beautiful to look at. Westminster Abbey is the burial spot of many famous historical figures, scientists, poets, and others who had made many contributions to the world. The Tower of London held many people captive over the years and has been featured in many stories, movies, and documentaries. You should visit it to learn more about the stories of those who were wrongfully held against their will.

As you can see, there is plenty to see and do while visiting London. Each day, you will be able to see new sites and learn more about London's past. This is a trip you will not soon forget.
