

Have Your Computer Work For You.

You probably have a computer at home, used for everything from paying your bills and reading MJ Mascaro articles, to surfing your favourite web sites and emailing or chatting with family and friends. Maybe you have more than one - one for you, and one for you kids. Most of us consider them necessary, but not on the same order as our refrigerator or stove. We don't need them - not really. Or do we?

What if your computer could work as hard as your other appliances? What if your computer could earn you money? Unless you've been living under a rock for the past few years, you know it can! You just haven't found an opportunity that appeals to you. Even if you don't spend much time on the Internet, you know that it's not only possible to work at home on your computer, it's more than likely you can make good money doing so.

You expect your appliances to work for you, why not your computer? You don't need to be a marketing guru or have a degree in technology to earn money online. Everything from the used car you want to sell to your knack for writing eye-catching ad copy, even your people skills can be sold online - for profit. Most of what you need to get going is already in front of you - your keyboard!

Put your computer to work for you, first, as a learning tool. Read. Visit all the sites you can, and learn what the experts have to say about marketing online. Check out other products and services that are successful, see how they sell to you online.

Learn all you can about how to best use what you have in your machine, or what you need to have. If you are not computer savvy, use your computer to find a mentor who can help you best utilize your computer as the tool it is. Find a system that doesn't require a vast knowledge of computers to operate, (an example is listed in the resource box) make a plan of your own based on what makes sense to you. Then put your best foot forward and get your idea, your product, and your skills out there for sale!
